The Fighting with Indians—Desperate Conflict—Survey of Utah—More Revenue Appointments.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, September 25, 1868.

INDIAN AFFAIRS.

The following telegrams were received at the War Department this morning:

St. Louis, September 24.—General Sheridan reports this day, in a further description of the fight between his Aid-de-Camp, Colonel Forsyth, and the Indians on the Upper Republican, that several other columns are moving to the same point. I trust the Indians will receive just punishment.

Fort Hays, September 23.—I have just heard from Col. Forsyth. The report sent here to-day is substantially correct. Lieut. Beecher is dead and Col. Forsyth is wounded, but the party is all right, although surrounded by Indians, and can hold out as they have plenty of ammunition and mule and horse flesh. They have given the Indians a salty dose. Col. Forsyth has lost Lieut. Beecher, Dr. Moore mortally wounded, two killed and eighteen wounded. He reports thirty-five Indians killed and many wounded. Col. Forsyth says he can whip the party and come in, if it was not for his wounded men and his horses all being killed.

[Signed] P. H. SHERIDAN,
Major General U. S. A

To Wm. T. Sherman, Lieutenant General.

Robbery and Murder—The Guilty Parties Captured.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

DELAWARE WATER GAP, Pa., September 25.—The Brainard House at this place was robbed this morning. Thomas Brodhead, proprietor, and his brother Theodore, started in pursuit of the robbers and came upon them on a road about fifty yards south of this place. Thomas Brodhead took hold of one of them and ordered him back and he appeared willing to go. The other stepped about ten feet away and drew a revolver, when the first said, "shoot them down." He immediately fired two shots, wounding Thomas Brodhead in the face and left side, when Theodore Brodhead came up, grappled with them and received a shot through the body, which killed him instantly. Before leaving, the murderers pounded Thomas Brodhead in the head with stones. The murderers are supposed to be Irish and to have hidden in a wood-shed. All the inhabitants were aroused and surrounded the mountains to capture them.

[SECOND DISPATCH.]

DELAWARE WATER GAP, Pa., September 25.—The murderers were captured at one o'clock this afternoon, about a mile west of this place, and recognized as the guilty parties. The excitement is very great. The Sheriff had great difficulty to prevent their being lynched. At two o'clock they started with the prisoners to lodge them in the Stroudsburg jail, accompanied by a large party of armed men. Thomas Brodhead will probably recover.

More Indian Outrages.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

ST. LOUIS, September 25.—Numerous Indian depredations have been committed during the past three days in the settlements between Denver and Colorado City. The Indians are said to have been camped in a strong position on the east side of Solum Creek, near the mountains, and make raids in all directions from that point. Several scouting parties of citizens are out, and there is a great deal of excitement among the people.

Riot Between Friends of Rival Candidates for the Mayoralty—Many Shots Fired but Few Hurt.

(By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.)

NASHVILLE, Sept. 25.—The exciting canvass for Mayor, which has been in progress the past two weeks between the friends of Alden, the present Radical Mayor, and Thornberg, moderate Republican, culminated to-night in a riot. Both parties, chiefly negroes, had torchlight processions, and many of them were drunk. The evening had been appropriated by the Thornberg men, whilst the Alden men, having been prevented the night previous by rain from having their procession, determined to have it to-night, notwithstanding the danger of collision, and about nine o'clock as the Alden procession was moving into the public square from the street a difficulty occurred with a negro who was shouting for Thornberg, and who, being attacked, drew a pistol and shot into the procession. A good many shots were fired at him in return. All along the line of the procession the armed negroes discharged their pieces, generally in the air, but at the corner of Deodrick and Cherry Wilson & Walsh's saloon was riddled with bullets. Some of the negroes stampeded through Deodrick street, firing hundreds of shots, and made an attack on Nolan's saloon, breaking the glass in the doors and windows. Another part of the procession made an attack on Holstein's saloon, Cherry street, but were unable to break in. Thousands of shots were fired, exclusively by negroes. Fortunately, but four were wounded, one of them seriously. None were killed. Whilst this was going on the Thornburg procession was in another part of the city, and took no part in the riot. About ten o'clock the crowd was dispersed by United States troops, and in a short time all was quiet.

The Riot at Camilla, Ga.

(By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—A special dispatch from Washington to the Evening Post gives a synopsis of the report of Major Howard, Sub Assistant Commissioner of Freedmen's Bureau in Georgia, relative to the recent riot at Camilla. Major Howard remarks that the circumstances of the riot are as already published, and says he had much difficulty in restraining the freedmen, who were much excited and desired to go to Camilla to the rescue of the Republicans there. He counselled them to remain quiet, promising that the affair should be thoroughly investigated, and if any great wrong was done it should be remedied, and they departed apparently satisfied. Major Howard forwards a partial list of the killed and wounded, numbering thirty-four, all of whom were freedmen except three.

Pierce, candidate for Congress, was not hurt.

A later report, dated at Albany, Ga., addressed to Col. J. R. Lewis, says the affair seems to have been a massacre. Statements of Murphy and freedmen are appended to the report, showing the nature of the attack and the manner in which the freedmen were pursued and hunted in swamps, &c. Major Howard telegraphed to General Sibley, on the 21st, that unless protection was immediately afforded to the freedmen he should earnestly request to be released from further duty in the bureau.

FOUR O'CLOCK A. M.

EDWIN M. STANTON.

His Speech at Steubenville, Ohio, Last Night.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

STEUBENVILLE, O, Sept. 25, 1868.

FRIENDS AND FELLOW-CITIZENS: The time is rapidly approaching when you will be called upon to choose whom you will trust for the Chief Executive power of this nation for the next four years, who shall exercise the law-making power as your representatives in Congress during the next Congressional term. You have never made a choice so important to yourselves, to your country, and to mankind; for upon it may rest the issues of peace or of war, of domestic tranquility or of civil discord, of freedom or of slavery. In short, all the blessings that can follow good government, or that a bad government can inflict upon the human race. At the last Presidential election the country was in the midst of a bloody war and had for three years been struggling for existence against treason and rebellion. The fortune of war was so varied that some patriots began to feel doubtful as to the result, while on the other hand the rebels, strong in military power, and encouraged by sympathizing friends in the Northern and Western States, were bold in defiance and boasted that it needed only for their final success that their friends in the Northern States should carry the Presidential election. These friends, who had resisted the war at every stage, were equally bold and confident in their expectation that their hour of triumph was at hand. But these hopes and expectations were doomed to ignominious overthrow at the polls by the election of Abraham Lincoln, and on the field of battle by our army under the command of Gen. Grant. [Applause.] Overwhelmed by this disaster, political and military, the rebels gave up in despair, declared their cause the "lost cause," and humbly sued for life, liberty and property, professing to be deeply grateful for the generous terms they were offered.

Of the causes that led to the rebellion and the justification of a nation in prosecuting the war, it is needless here to dwell. They are fresh in your recollection. The graves of 300,000 patriot soldiers slain in battle by the rebels are still green, the tears of orphans and widows and bereaved parents still flow, and the maimed and wounded soldiers around us are living memorials of the cruelty of the rebels in their war against the government of the United States.

You will bear in mind, however, that the rebellion was occasioned by a thirty years, conspiracy of those whom Mr. Johnson happily termed the slave holding oligarchy of the Southern States, an oligarchy based upon a landed monopoly and slave labor. This slave-holding aristocracy thirsted to extend their territorial and political power, and by extending their system into the free States to obtain a monopoly of the fertile land and rich minerals of those States, and ultimatel to obtain control of the Government.

Experience has shown that the system of free labor and slave labor are hostile and cannot exist together, so that a foothold of slavery is an impassible barrier to free emigration and would give to the slave holders not only a monopoly of lands, products and minerals, but command of the great channel of commerce to the Pacific and to the nations of the East, and would make them the richest people on the face of the globe.

This ambitious aim was sternly resisted in the Northern States. Mindful of the fortunes of war and fearful of delay, the first election of Mr. Lincoln was deemed by the slave holders a fitting occasion for the outbreak of rebellion. On the day after the Presidential election the flag of the United States was hauled down and the Palmetto flag ran up in Charleston. Conventions for secession were asked in all the slaveholding States, and very soon ten States organized at Montgomery the so-called Confederate Government, hostile to the Government of the United States, and transferred its capital to Richmond. Immediately afterwards forts, arsenals, magazines, arms, ammunition, ship-yards, ships of war, and the public money, were seized and converted to the purposes of the rebellion. The navigation of the Ohio and Potomac rivers was closed. The Northern men and Northern women were imprisoned or banished from the slaveholding States. Armies were levied, the forts and troops of the United States were besieged, bombarded and captured, and the capital of the nation at Washington was beleaguered and threatened by hostile forces.

In this condition of things the first troops were called out in defense of his nation, and the first war loan negotiated, and for every life that has been lost, every drop of blood that has been expended, every dollar that has been laid out, every bond or note that has been issued, every tax that has been collected, the slave-holding aristocracy are responsible—they and their sympathisers in the North and Western States who urged them to hold on, to carry on the war until they could obtain control of the Government at the next Presidential election.

The measures of Mr. Lincoln to defend the government received the highest sanction. The government and legislatures of the loyal States vied with each other in urging enlistments. Congress at its first session voted thousands of men and billions of dollars to support him. The people flocked by thousands and thousands to join the army. The soldiers in every camp from the Mississippi to the Rapidan, from every corps, brigade, regiment and company shouted to their brethren at home to stand by the Government and rally round the flag. These measures of defense were not without opposition, for about the very time Sherman and his army were forcing their way over the fortifications and entrenchments of Atlanta, a Democratic Convention at Chicago declared the war a failure and demanded a cessation of hostilities. This made a plain, broad issue, which was soon to become the leading issue of the Presidential canvass. The result was the decision of twenty-one Ststes, two hundred and thirteen electoral votes, and over twenty millions of people supported their Government.

The estimate of General Grant upon this result is expressed in the following telegram:

"City Point, November 10, 1864, Hon. Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War—Enough now seems to be known to say who is to hold the reins of government for the next four years. I congratulate the President for his double victory. The election having passed off quietly with no blood shed or riot throughout the land is a victory worth more to the Government than a battle won. Rebeldom and Europe will construe it so.

"U. S. GRANT, Lieutenant General."

(Applause.) Encouraged by the people and by the army, on the 1st of September, 1863, Abraham Lincoln struck a blow at the root of the rebellion by the emancipation proclamation, liberating four millions of slaves, strengthening our armies and carrying dismay to the heart of the rebels. The full effect of this great measure was not apparent until near the close of the war; but now, when the restoration of slavery is a cherished hope of those most hostile to the general government, it cannot be too well considered. The wealth and power of the rebels were mainly in their slaves. They were the laboring and producing class, and without their labor the plantations were of little value. By a system of enforced and unpaid labor the rebel master was able to sow his lands, gather his crop, and even clothe his family, and furnish supplies to the army, while the whole white population could engage in war. It was thus that slavery was found to be a mighty engine of war, more powerful than belonged to any other people. But it was quite different in the Northern States. Every Union soldier who left his home to join the army went from the farm, the workshop or the manufactory, and diminished the productive industry of the State. In his absence the crops were ungathered and rotted upon the ground, the hammer was silent, the manufactory stood still. He had no slave to do his labor and support his family for nothing. But the emancipation of the slaves changed the position of parties. The slaves left the plantations and flocked within our lines. Thousands upon thousands joined our armies and performed military work. The condition of the war was, therefore, in some degree equalized, and this great act of Mr. Lincoln's carried dismay into the hearts of the rebels and strengthened the hearts of loyal people. Besides, a large and powerful party, who regarded slavery as God-forbidden and a crime, and had been laboring for years to abolish or limit it, gathered new hope and joined to help to bring the war to a close.

The eminent speaker then explained how essential was credit and good faith to a government, and that no government can exist without debt in time of war, comparing France, Russia, Austria, Great Britain, Spain, Italy and the Papal States—all the powers of the world rely on their credit, the same in the United States; how in the commencement of the war the country had no arms or ammunition, accoutrements, ships of war, or money; the people sustained the government by having good faith, and thus the country was sustained and conducted in safety. He said, then, on the meeting of Congress loans were issued and moneys were received; the several acts of Congress were also executed, as the civil rights bill; the measures adopted for the cast off of the rebellion; the measures taken for the widows, the orphans and the wounded. Then eulogizing Grant as the greatest commander in the world, asking why he should not be elected; and Colfax, who filled one of the highest offices in the land, occupying the Speaker's chair three times in succession. He said if a man would hide from the boy the gun which his father carried through our battles, and on his death bed, with bleeding wounds, bequeathed it to the boy, that man would not vote for Grant. The speaker gave a touching narrative of Gen. Grant's life, all his career from a boy until a Governor appointed him as a Colonel to a refractory regiment, narrating all the battles won until the great capture of Richmond. He beautifully described the parties that would not vote for Grant—rebels and rebel sympathizers.

He alluded to the New York Convention, to the revolutionary letter of F. P. Blair before the Convention, demonstrating the danger, in thrilling eloquence, that this form of government would be forever lost. The financial question was also ably discussed, proving that it was not the issue of the Southern rebels but left to the Northern Democracy. It meant repudiation.

He next alluded to the bravery of our army and our navy, narrating in superb language the different marches, describing vividly our battles and our naval combats, our victories and trophies of war.

Mr. Stanton concluded his brilliant speech with an eloquent appeal to all loyal people, to all who have their country at heart, to work assiduously, to work with ardor, and by the election of Grant give liberty, contentment and happiness for you and the party forever.

NEW ORLEANS.

Legislative Matters—Registration Commenced—Excitement Occasioned—Shooting Affray.

(By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.)

NEW ORLEANS, September 25.—The negro contestant of Reuben White, Senator elect from the Caddo District, was admitted yesterday, White being declared ineligible.

Registration was opened to-day. Intense excitement was occasioned in the city by the refusal of registration to foreigners naturalized in the Fifth and Sixth District Courts, on the ground that the naturalization was illegal. The decision was sustained by the Chairman of the State Board of Registration.

Three armed negroes had an affray with a white man in the French market this morning. One of the negroes was killed. The white man escaped, but will probably be arrested to-night.

Gov. Warmouth has issued a proclamation this evening calling upon citizens to remain at home and refrain from exciting acts of violence or commotion, asserting the ability of the civil authorities to suppress all difficulties that may arise and arrest offenders, and that if necessary will be promptly supported by the military. He also calls upon all political clubs to abstain from any demonstration at present.

A bill was introduced in the Senate to-day amending the registration act so as to require only the oath prescribed by the State Constitution, and further defining the powers of Registers and Supervisors. It passed two readings and was made the special order for Monday next.

It is stated the Senate registers had arrogated the right to supplement the registration law, adding provisions which the Senate had rejected. An investigation was ordered and a committee appointed.

Mr. Fosdyck, member of the State Registration Board, has entered a second protest against the action of the majority in adopting rules against the Constitution and laws of the State.

MEETING AT CITY HALL.

Outpouring of the Loyal Masses.

ADDRESS BY GEN. JAMES R. HAWLEY.

Last night the crowds who were so disappointed the day before in being prevented by the rain from meeting on the Commons to hear the speeches which the same cause prevented, assembled at City Hall—at least as many of them as could be gotten into that vast auditorium. Numbers grew into the innumerable, hundreds into thousands, and the cry was "still they come." The fame of some of the best public speakers in the nation drew many there, but the majority went out of pure patriotism, intending to show that nothing could deter Republicans from turning out, and that the precautions of the Committee on Thursday in deferring the speaking, however wise, was by no means necessary. All who were there last night, however, were glad they were, and had enough enthusiasm left in them after the washing out they got on Thursday to scare the Democrats as Maine or the procession did the Post and its editors.

The meeting was called to order by Capt. W. B. Cook, who announced the following officers:

President—Dr. George McCook.

Vice Presidents—George Wilson, James Montooth, Dr. W. A. Halleck, John A. Sargent, John Wilson, John Wallace, Isaiah Dickey, Z. Wainwright, John Gangwish, David Holmes, Robert Gumbert, George H. Anderson, Hon. Alfred Slack, Col. John D. Bailey, A. A. Sampson, Henry F. Eggers, Captain John Miller, Richard Straw, Jacob Covode, S. Walker, Jr., John Vance, Capt. W. M. Hartzell, Henry Moorhead, Martin Meyers, Thos. Hershberger, John Paul, Capt. W. A. Tomlinson, Colonel Joseph French, Charles Beck, James Robb, Wm. R. Ford, Thomas J. Craig, Colonel Andrew Scott, James McAuley, Thomas Aiken, Geo. A. Berry, Samuel H. Hartman, Col. George Gerst, W. H. Phelps, George Hetzel, Jr., Morgan Evans, John J. Williams, D. N. White, James Dickey, Alex. Miller, Ed. Meye, August Ammon, David Edwards, John Wilbert, Wm. Redman.

Secretaries—Members of the Republican press.

Prof. Pope was introduced, and entertained the meeting with a new campaign song.

Dr. McCook was then introduced to the meeting. He announced that Gen. Fisher, who was to have addressed the meeting, was on account of sickness in his family compelled to leave the city, and consequently could not be present.

Dr. McCook then said that he regretted that his name had been announced as one of the speakers of the meeting, as it was well known that on a former occasion his duties had been so arduous as to injure his health; but he could not say that he entirely regretted it, as his head was white with the frosts of over seventy winters and his "sands of life nearly run out," and before another four years rolled around he would have passed away, and before he was called from this stage of action he wished to leave a record behind him that his children would not be ashamed of. He called upon all present to witness that he would die advocating the cause of constitutional liberty. He wished them to bear testimony that he was opposed to repudiation of every kind. He had been engaged in politics for many years, and he had never in all his life seen victory so plainly portrayed in any contest as in the present one. After a short review of the Democracy in his usual style, Dr. McCook closed his remarks and introduced to the meeting

GEN. JOS. R. HAWLEY, OF CONNECTICUT.

Gen. Hawley said—It hardly seemed necessary to him that there should be any more speaking in Pittsburgh, from the majorities Allegheny county had given in times gone by, when the country was in danger, and from the demonstration he had seen on Thursday, the people were evidently well posted on all the issues of the day and the importance of these issues. But he supposed that the majority could be increased here as well as anywhere else. He said the Republicans throughout the land were looking to Pennsylvania with intense interest, and if Pennsylvania will give thirty or forty thousand majority in October, the election of Grant would be certain. He had been over a considerable portion of the State and he never saw so much earnestness of purpose in any contest. The people were full of enthusiasm and full of hope. He held that practically, the war was not ended, literally it was he knew, for the rebels had laid down their arms, or rather General Grant got them in a corner and took their arms from them, and if he had not done so, they would still have been fighting us. He then reviewed at length the cause of the war, and the record of the two parties relative to the same, and the condition of the country at the time of Lincoln's election. Attorney General Black said that we had no power to coerce the South. Floyd had stolen the arms and munitions of war from the Government and shipped them South, and Cobb had destroyed the credit of the Government, while Toucey had scattered the navy to the four winds of the earth. The crowned heads of Europe had said that our Government could not withstand the shock of a revolution; but the past had proven that it could. The speaker then referred to the patriotism of the people during the war, and the promptness with which they responded to the calls of the Government for men and money. The Democracy, he said were complaining and lamenting the amount of blood and treasure expended to conquer the rebels. This was to be expected of them. They had objected to the war and to any measure of the government to suppress the rebellion. They objected to the employment of the negro in the army, and also opposed granting to the soldier the right to vote. He knew there were many Democrats in the army; but he wished it to be remembered that they had entered it in opposition to the advice of every democratic paper and platform in the nation, and he could not see how they could now associate with those men, politically who had called them "Lincoln hirelings."

In speaking of the manner in which the war had been prosecuted, he read the resolutions presented in Congress in 1862, by Winter Davis, of Maryland, a Democrat, which he said had been followed to the letter, yet his Democratic friends complain of it.

Never had a war been conducted in a more Christian manner by any nation in the world. Christianity followed the sword from the Potomac to the Gulf. As the army progressed churches were opened, schools were opened, and that most charitable and Christian-like of all institutions, the Freedmen's Bureau, was organized, and the hungry were fed, no matter what their color or condition. In the little district which he commanded fifteen thousand had been cared for, and among that number were the wives, mothers and daughters of rebels, who received the bounty of the government, while just across the line were the sons, husbands and brothers, with their rifles in their hands ready to take the life of Union men, yet the Democrats were opposed to the Freedmen's Bureau.

In such a christian spirit had the war been prosecuted that notwithstanding thirteen thousand of the nation's loyal sons were starved to death, and lay in their graves at Andersonville, not a single one of their murderers had been hung. The government had not been uncharitable in any respect, but on the other hand had shown too much leniency, yet the Democrats grumble. Slavery was emancipated, but not until it became a matter of necesssity. For two long years the war had been prosecuted without success, and during all that time the cry was descending from above as to the Egyptians of ancient days, "let my people go," and not until they were liberated were our armies successful. They ask us what we gained by the war, and pronounce it a failure in the face of the fact that the shackles have been broken from four millions of slaves, an achievement of which any nation in the world should be proud.

The Constitutional amendments were then taken up and discussed in an able and forcible manner. The XIVth amendment, he said, contained six points, the second of which, the correction of the basis of representation, was the great cause of the present trouble. The Democracy opposed it both North and South, not on account of its illegality or unjustness, but because it would wrest from them the probability of getting control of the Government. It is well known that under the old method the eight million of whites in the South had a representation in the National Congress equal to that of twelve million of white men in the North, and that in South Carolina the vote of one white man was equal to that of two men in Pennsylvania, and it was to correct this that the amendment was framed. The Democracy opposed it because under the old order of things the South, instead of loosing by the war, gained even more than they had asked for. Had the amendment not been adopted the South would have sent a delegation to Congress of ninety members, most of them officers and members of the late Confederate government, and it would only require nineteen Democratic votes from the North to give them a majority, and who could not fortell the result. They would then have the control of the entire Government, when they only originally asked for the control of eleven States, and it would be run in the interests of slavery and secession. The millions of money expended and the hundreds of thousands of lives sacrificed would have all been in vain. Still the Democracy object to the amendment.

In speaking of the state of affairs in the South he said that they had civil war there at the present time, just as much as powder is fire—it only wants the spark to set it ablaze, and the only way to prevent it was to elect Grant. The policy of these Southern Democrats is portrayed in the letter of Blair, which secured him the nomination. The speaker here read extracts from the Blair-Broadhead letter, and said that no matter what side issues might be forced into the canvass the reconstruction question was the main issue.

Holding up a greenback he said it was something that the Democratic party had got in the habit of calling money, and they wanted us to legislate accordingly and make it money. The Republicans had adopted it as money when it was necessary, but it was only temporary. It did not pretend to be money, it was simply a promise to pay money. The Republicans had taken it as a shipwrecked man would to a raft. It had brought them to the harbor and the Democrats now wanted to stick to the raft, but the Reublicans say no. Having arrived safely in the harbor they prefer a ship or a house. He then gave Mr. Pendleton's theory of paying the 5-20 bonds in greenbacks for the purpose of paying the national debt. He denied the right to pay them in greenbacks, but admitting the right, said that the Government would be foolish to adopt the plan. We were told, he said, that gold was worth $1,43, which was a mistake and one by which many people were misled. Gold was cheaper than it ever was; California and Australia had sent more of it into the market during the past year than in any previous year. It was not confined to this Government but circulated in every nation of the globe. It would be more correct to say that greenbacks were only worth seventy cents on the dollar. And if they were so depreciated now what would they be worth in three years if Mr. Pendleton's theory was adopted? According to Mr. Pendleton's doctrine it only required a paper mill and a printing press to make all the money a nation wanted. How would it be in the end? Greenbacks would be depreciated until they were not worth five cents on the dollar, and they would be repudiated, which was the intent and mecning of the plan. no matter how they attempted to conceal it. He held that we should gradually return to specie payment, and that would make the greenback as good as gold.

The speaker then referred to the question of taxation and denied the right to tax the bonds. He said that no State could tax them and it would be a breach of the public faith for the national Government to do so. The credit of a nation was based upon its honor, and not upon its ability to pay. No nation in the World was more able to pay than the United States, yet our bonds bearing six per cent. interest in gold, were only worth seventy-nine cents on the dollar in England, while English consuls at three per cent. were worth ninety-six cents. This he said was because they lacked faith in our honesty, and it was all on the account of the howlings of the Democracy. He then reviewed the course of the Democracy during the war, and held that it had been a dishonorable one from the beginning.

The speaker then briefly reviewed the records of the candidates for the Presidency, referring to Grant as the greatest soldier of the times, and contrasting his conduct on the Fourth of July, 1863, with that of Seymour, who upon that day addressed a meeting of Democrats in Tammany Hall, New York. He concluded by proposing nine cheers for Grant and Colfax, which was responded to by the entire audience.

Prof. Pope being loudly called for, sang "The Two Copperheads."

The Chairman then introduced to the meeting Gen. Lewis Barker, of Maine, who declined making an extended address as he had an appointment to fill in Allegheny this evening. He however, found time to "go through" the Post, a copy of which he had picked up on the cars, and in which it was stated that the Republican majority in Maine was only 18,000.

The meeting then adjourned with three cheers for Maine.

Mr. Barker, at the opening of his remarks, reflected upon our reporter undeservedly. We made no report of his speech at the ratification meeting referred to, further than to speak of it in the most flattering terms and regret our inability to publish it in full. He must have been "butchered" in some other journal.

COME BOYS IN BLUE.

Come, Boys in Blue, ye brave and true,
 In Freedom's periled hour,
To vote or fight for truth and right,
 Let traitors feel your power!

Five years ago, to meet the foe
 A mighty host ye trod,
On tented plain, and stormy main,
 Ye fought for Man and God!

Ye who have bled, think of the dead,
 Erst fallen by your side!
One victory more we now implore,
 Else all in vain they've died!

Now, by the blood that, like a flood,
 From patriot heart and vein,
Then drenched the earth that gave them birth,
 Their sacred cause maintain!

Though shot, nor shell, nor battle yell,
 Proclaim the contest rife,
The same fell will, as vengeful still,
 Maintains the stubborn strife!

BOURBONS AND BONAPARTES.

Comedy by Edmond About—A Country Visit, or Politics and Fate.

[Dedicated to Garibaldi.]

The following little "comedy," treating of the recent visit of the Count of Grogenti a brother of the ex-King of Naples, and his wife, the eldest daughter of Queen Isabella of Spain, to the Emperor and Empress of France, has attracted great attention. Its author, Edmond About, is well known as one of the ablest French writers living:

The scene represents a magnificent château, of every imaginable style of architecture. The personaels are: The Master of the House, 60 years of age, well cut mustache, mild expression of countenance; manner perfect, slow gait, weighing carefully his words, and of most refined and courteous bearing. The lady of the house, still young and still beautiful, wearing a costume which recalls that of Marie Antoinette; distinguished appearance and a countenance in which feminine beauty is combined with an air of dignity and a certain firmness of purpose. The Count, a handsome young Italian, his forehead marked by a scar; the Countess, his wife, a young Spanish lady of high birth. Dignitaries, functionaries, embassadors, choir-boys (?)

SCENE I.—(Count and Countess, as they enter the Park.)

Count—My dear love, these poor people will do their best to receive us; we must not humiliate them too much; for a few hours let us try to forget the superiority of our noble origin.

Countess—But, my dear, it is exasperating to be received by usurp——, by upst—, I mean by strangers come from no one knows where!

Count—Of course, I grant you that this château, as indeed, the country and the people who inhabit it, belong by Divine right to our family. Providence has forgotten itself; but perhaps He may repair——

Countess (quickly)—That is certain. Sister Patrocinio has promised that to mamma.

Count—Of course, but meanwhile, my angel, we are not at home, and we have to do with thin-skinned people who have the power of either helping or injuring us.

Countess—and we are coming to beg from them.

Count—Fie! We are coming to find out what they think. It is for that reason you had better not tutoyer the mistress of the house.

Countess—I have a perfect right to do so. She was born on our estates, and she is my mother's subject.

Count—Certainly; but then we are in the country.

Countess—Alas!

SCENE II.—AFFECTIONATE EMBRACES AND PRESENTATIONS.

The Master of the house—Count, delighted to receive the son of a prince who cordially hated me.

Count—Sire, it is a pleasure to me to remember that you returned the compliment.

The Master—And how is poor Fr. II?

Count—Always in the plight to which your Majesty's friends reduced him.

Master—I trust my Generals treat him with all the respect due to him.

Count—Their aid would be more useful than all General Dumont's bows.

Master—One cannot do everything at a time. Allow me to present my well-beloved cousin, Prince Murât.

Count—Prince, charmed to see the son of the man who dethroned my grandfather.

Prince—Your Royal Highness will remember that his august ancestor avenged himself right royally. Accept my sincere homage

Master of the House—You know that this fat entete still hopes to reign at Naples.

Count—So do I. Clever people are sure to agree.

The Mistress of the House, to the Countess—The Grand Veneur, Prince de la Moskowa, son of the illustrious Marshal Ney.

Countess—It is you, Prince, who in 1849 received that famous letter.

Prince of Moskowa—Yes, madam, I had that honor.

Countess—Would you believe it? Three Roman dukes maintained to me that the letter never existed. Your father came to Spain, did he not?

The Prince—Yes, madam. He took the liberty of conquering Gallicia and the Austurias, from your august grandfather.

Countess—I have a faint recollection of something of the sort. Fie, fie, monsieur, how wrong it is to make war upon legitimate princes.

Prince—May it please your royal highness, the Bourbons paid us out.

Countess—What a child I am! I forgot the end of the story. But you are not offended, Monsieur le Grand Veneur?

Prince—Comment donc, madam! We are in the country.

SCENE V.—A WALK IN THE APARTMENTS OF THE CHATEAU.

The Master of the House (to the Count)—This humble dwelling dates from Louis XIII.

Count—My ancestor.

Master—These rooms belonged to Louis XIV.

Count—Grandfather of Philip V., founder of my illustrious dynasty.

Countess—As well as of ours.

The Master (smiling)—Allow me to remark that this colossal edifice is the work of the master spirit of this century, my beloved uncle, Napoleon I.

Countess (giddily)—It's not bad; but it's not the best thing he did.

[General silence.]

The Count to the Countess—My dear, you must allude to the Treaty of 1808.

Countess—A piece of treachery which—

Count—Hush!

Countess—No, I will not say anything. But was there not another act of which this was the scene? Is there not a certain table, pen, and ink-bottle carefully preserved?

The Master—Yes, madam. It was here the august head of my family nobly abdicated in favor of my poor cousin, Napoleon II., whom the atrocious House of Austria—

Count and Countess—Our dearest relatives.

Master—I think it would be more prudent if we left our families in peace.

Countess—Was my poor cousin left in peace in his solitude at Etterheim, where he only dreamt of love?

The Master (in order to change the conversation)—I must apologize for the bad taste of this saloon. It was fitted up by a poor bourgeois Louis Ph——.

The Count—My grand-uncle, by his wife, the venerable Queen Marie Amelie, aunt of my august father.

The Master (in a patronizing tone)—Every one does justice to the virtues of Queen Marie Amelie. The only thing one can reproach her for is having been the mother of an ambitious son, who perpetually conspires against the will of the people.

The Countess—Do you mean the Duke d'Aûmale?

The Count—My cousin on his mother and father's side, for he is son-in-law to my much regretted aunt, the Princess of Salerno.

A Courtier—The Duke D'Aûmale is not in question. It was the Duke de Montpensier who was alluded to.

Conutess—Oh. I give him up to you.

SCENE VI.—AT DINNER.

A Servant—Poulet à la Marengo.

The Count (to a neighbor)—The Marengo is a national dance, is it not?

The Lady—Yes, which our army taught the Austrians to dance in 1800.

The Count (who fought in the Austrian ranks at Sadowa)—I thank you. He lays down his his knife and fork.)

A Servant (in a loud tone—Bombe à la vanille.

The Count (startled)—Bomba, my father.

The Servant, repeating the words slowly—Bombe à la vanille.

The Count (tranquillized)—I shall take some.

SCENE VII.—THE DEPARTURE.

(The Master of the House and the Count walking up and down a Corridor.)

The Count—If Southern Italy declares in favor of her former masters—

The Master—Does this evantualite appear to you probable?

The Count—At least it is possible. In which case how would France act?

The Master—France would reflect.

The Count—She is ready—so they say.

The Master—I am happy to believe it.

The Count—She could then take the Two Sicilies back from the revolutionists.

The Master—Nothing is impossible as regards France.

The Count—Would she support our cause?

The Master—That would depend on circumstances.

The Count—And that unfortunate Spain! She is in a difficult position.

The Master—So I am informed.

The Count—She has enemies abroad.

The Master—Do you believe that?

The Count—That she has internal enemies I am certain.

The Master—That appears to me the most probable.

The Count—Will you allow subversive principles to triumph at your very door? The Pyrenees no longer exists.

The Master—They are not altogether done away with.

The Count—But if France forsakes us, what are we to do?

The Master—Be guided by future events, and leave as little as possible to chance.

The Count—Shall we obtain no succor from the man whom Providence has made arbitrator of the fate of Europe?

The Master—I only speak of what I know, and I do what I can. We are in the country. You understand.—Translated for N. Y. Tribune.

FEARFUL BLASPHEMY.

Fruit of Religious (!) Sensationalism and Transformation Scenes.

The religious sensationists of Water street, played a new card on Monday. It was the opening of Kit Burns' rat pit for a prayer meeting. There was a small attendance, with the same display of real or feigned enthusiasm on the part of a few of the conductors. Kit Burns closed his bar for the hour, but was by no means a proper door-keeper, as shown by a conversation between him and a clerical gentleman, who asked:—Pray, sir, are you Mr. Burns?" Kit—"No, sir; I am not." Clerical gent—"Can I see him?" Kit—"Yes, sir, he is in there relating his experience. He's on the floor at this moment." Clerical gent—"Blessed be God! I must go and hear him." But the most horrible part of the performance was the burlesque that followed. After the meeting had closed, one of the habitues of the pit came up to the bar, and said:—"Brother Burns, allow me to ask for some of that soul's cordial which thou hast behind that place which the profane call the bar." Kit—You can just go to ——," Individual—"What?" Kit—"Go to——. What do you want?" Individual—"Brandy." Kit—"Very well. The brandy was served, and soon there was a much larger attendance outside than was at the meeting. All of a sudden a noise was heard outside, and some one asked what was that, when Mrs. Burns, a rather comely looking matron, exclaimed, "They are killing rats." Entering, one saw in the pit, where a moment before was kneeling the ministers of the gospel, a small bull terrier. Outside, a tall, stout, rough-looking individual held a rat by the tail, and sang:—

"Come to Jesus, come to Jesus, come to Jesus,
Just now, just now, just now."

As the third "just now" came out he flung in the rat, and immediately the little terrier seized him and he was dead. Another, and another followed, but the hymn was stopped by request. When the slaughter was over, the same individual struck up

"Salvation, 'tis a joyful sound, Harmonious to our ears."

Again they retired to the bar-room, and again the drinking commenced in moderation, when a smart chap exclaimed:—"Brother Burns, how is it with you?" Kit—I'm going to Jesus." Such was the end of the first day's meeting at Kit Burns'. Of his own sentiments Kit Burns said: "I don't belong to the Church, nor do I care about this affair. They can have the dog-pit as long as they pay for it; but I belong to one religion, and to no other, and never will." "Burns," said a fellow, chiming in, "have you got the 'relig?'" "None of your business," says Kit, "I've got the gin." That these performances can aid the cause of true religion in any way is more than doubtful. They are themselves but one remove from the blasphemy they incite, their sole merit lying in the supposed sincerity of their conductors. It is about time that this religious scandal came to an end.

Portland, Oregon.

The Weekly Orgonian says: There are 4,000 feet of wharf in this city. Of the Nicolson pavement, there is, in length, upwards of 5,000 feet. There are six dwellings now in course of construction, the average cost of which will be over $5,000. $200,000 will be expended in the erection of brick buildings during this summer. There are three steam saw mills, each capable of cutting 50,000 feet of lumber daily. There are fifteen hotels, with accommodations, in the aggregate for 2,500 guests. There are about 100 saloons, reckoning all places where drinks are sold. There are eight schools with attendance of about 1,200 pupils. There are ten churches that will seat congregations numbering, in all, 5,000 persons. There are eight steamboats that ply regularly to and from this city. There is telegraphic communication in three directions—with Washington Territory, Eastern Oregon, California and thence with all the world.

RIVER NEWS.

Our rivers under the influence of the recent rains are rising rapidly, and we should not be surprised to see them almost bank full by to-morrow. Here it has rained almost without cessation for forty-eight hours, and from all that we can learn, the rain has been general. We look for more water out of both the Monongahela and Allegheny Rivers, and we should not be surprised to find twenty feet in the channel to-day.

There has been no arrivals or departures aside from the local packets since our last report. The J. N. McCullough from Cincinnati was due last night and will doubtless be found in port this morning.

The Grey Eagle, Capt. C. L. Brennan, is the regular packet for Parkersburg to-day, leaving promptly at noon.

The Ida Rees No. 2, Capt. Albert, is announced to leave for Cairo and Memphis, and all intermediate points to-day.

The Kate Putnam, Capt. Geo. W. Reed, will positively take her departure for St. Louis to-day, and passengers and shippers should bear this in mind. Messrs. Young and Harbison are associated together in the office.

We have some few additional particulars in regard to the collision between the Ingomar and towboat Antelope. Several of the Antelope's barges were considerably injured, as was also the Ingomar. The last named boat should have left here for Parkersburg yesterday.

On Wednesday night last four boats loaded with coal, moored a short distance above Dam No. 1, broke loose, and were carried over the dam, and completely wrecked. The boats were struck by the wreck of a sunken barge, which drifted against them and parted their lines.

—The Lorena and Maggie Hays were loading at Cincinnati for Pittsburgh on Thursday.

—Capt. Morris, recently drowned from the tow-boat Baltic, resided at Baden, O., on the Ft. Wayne Railroad.

—The steamer Wild Duck and barges load at Carondelet, Mo., with 1,000 tons of iron ore for Steubenville, Ohio.

—The Upper Mississippi newspapers have articles on the steamboat race, which is now going on. The excitement is increasing.

—The Board of Aldermen, at Memphis, have repealed the ordinance discriminating against outside boats in collecting wharfage.

—The Camelia and Glendale, en route from St. Louis to Pittsburgh, and the Messenger, en route from Pittsburgh to St. Louis, were at Evansville on Wednesday.

—The Coal Hill, Greyhound and Stella left Louisville for below, on Monday, with tows of coal. The two former passed through the canal and the latter over the falls.

—Marshal Irwin sold the Rochester, with her engine, furniture, tackle, &c., at Wheeling, on Tuesday, for $1,550. The purchaser was a gentleman from Pittsburgh.

—Gen. Ed. C. McCook has been appointed internal Revenue Collector for the Eighth District of Illinois. Ed. was a smart boy while a pilot and assistant clerk, before the war, on Illinois River steamboats, and has progressed astonishingly. Capt. Jno. Lowry, one of the oldest of Illinois boatmen, quit the river some months ago now carries on a distillery at Bloomington.

—The Cincinnati Enquirer says: Capt. A. Q. Ross returned this morning from his visit to the principal river towns, between this city and Cairo, where he has been to ask the co-operation of the authorities and others of said cities in the proposed Congressional excursion. His mission was entirely successful. Louisville, Evansville, Paducah and Cairo have appointed to meet the Central Committee.

—The New Orleans Crescent, of Sunday, says: Yesterday brought to a close the third week of the commercial year 1868, and judging from the amount of business transacted thus far, the present promises to eclipse any business season since the termination of the late war. Despite low water, Radical legislation, and a hundred other minor depressing circumstances, the future looks quite promising to steamboatmen.

—A St. Louis telegram says: Every boat that arrives from the Upper Mississippi has a big trip of freight, and a liberal number of passengers. From the Missouri in consequence of low water, not much can be brought, and trade is rather dull, causing some of the larger boats to withdraw. Offerings for N. O., Memphis, and all the lower river points are largely in excess of what they have been for a long time, and almost every boat from here takes a full load.

—An Evansville exchange says: T. P. Agnew, chief engineer of the J. P. Webb, is in the city. He attributes the accident to the too great confidence of the falls pilot, Wm. Varble, who thought to bring the beat through without troubling the engineer to back up, as is the habit generally. When he discovered he was about to fail, it was too late to save her. The engines were in first rate order, and never worked better. The second engineer was at one engine the striker at the other, and Mr. Agnew himself at the throttle, and every bell was answered promptly. There is an old adage. "It is never dangerous to be safe," and Billy Varble's reputation as a falls pilot is so well established that he could well afford to take every precaution. Pink Varble can't well be improved upon, and he, it will be remembered, lost a boat of his own a year or two ago. Agnew and his assistants left the engines when the water began running over the main deck, and had a tight race to beat it to hurricane deck.

DISEASED LUNGS.

There is no doubt whatever that diseases of the lungs, or ulcers of whatever sort, on any of the internal organs may be, and are frequently cured, and a complete condition of health established. If the elaborative functions, of which the stomach is the primary and most important one, are restored to a condition to do the repairing of the human system, ulcers or sores, whether upon the lungs, the liver, the kidneys or the bowels, or upon the legs, as is frequently the case, can be made to heal, and a complete standard of health re-established.

We have frequently seen these results from the use of Dr. KEYSER'S LUNG CURE, a pleasant and agreeable medicine, which will ripen up and carry out of the animal economy all effete and used up material. Dr. K. says that he has known the most distressing and harassing coughs, whose vibrations would threaten to shake the whole constitution to pieces, removed in the course of a few days. In long standing cases of consumption, or of other sometimes fatal, but always troublesome and annoying maladies, known as catarrh, chronic bronchitis, trachitis or pharyngitis, it is a wonderful alleviating medicine in the former and a sure cure in the latter disease.

DR. KEYSER'S LUNG CURE IS ENRICHED BY SOME OF THE MOST VALUABLE PLANTS AND HERBS KNOWN TO BE USEFUL AND CURATIVE IN ALL DETERIORATED STATES OF THE HUMAN BLOOD, and whilst it adds to its plasma, it at the same time stimulates, gently but effectively, the skin, the kidneys, the liver and the glandular system to sufficient action to enable the body to take on healthful action and eradicate the disease. The sick and afflicted should bear in mind the virtues of this great medicine, and if those who are sufficiently alive to the importance of health, will resort to it in the beginning of a cough or cold, there would be no falling into declines and rapid consumption, so hopelessly incurable and so most surely fatal.

Sold by the gross, dozen or single bottle, at

THE MEETING at Irwin's Station to-day will be addressed by General HAWLEY, Ex-Gov. POLLOCK, and HON. A. K. MCCLURE. Remember that a special train leaves precisely at noon, free for all to the station and return. The Pittsburgh delegation should be a large one.

HON. LEWIS BARKER, of Maine, the rapidest talker in America, and withal one of the finest and most gifted orators and scholars of the country, will speak to-night at a Republican mass meeting to be held in the Diamond Square, Allegheny. Those who desire hearing a masterly speech should be present.

WENDELL PHILLIPS has come out for General GRANT, but his going in or coming out for anybody or anything is of little consequence. It is, however, highly creditable to the pugnacious gentleman that he still retains a nice sense of discrimination to discover that the salvation of the country depends on the election of the Republican nominee to the Presidency.

IN A DEMOCRATIC procession at Western Reserve, Ohio, one of the transparencies bore a motto eulogizing JEFFERSON DAVIS. Times change. A few years ago it would have been as much as a thousand lives were worth to have honored the arch-traitor—then doing his best to destroy our Government and conquer our armies—in a Northern community. In their own rashness and insanity the Democrats are inviting their political destruction.

THE SPANISH PEOPLE are a quiet, industrious folk, not very highly civilized and a little too superstitious, but possessing to our eyes no especial wickedness for which so great a punishment was necessary as that of being governed by such truly bad monarchs as have held sway there for the last half century. Other people have looked on in sorrow and almost in amazement at their apathetic tolerance. Italy and Austria strode forward but Spain occupied her third rate position, with occasional turbulence, but no attempts to break the chains that bound her. Other nations won constitutional and actual freedom, while Spain suffered under the Bourbons.

Wayland says "It is vain for a people to expect to be free unless they are first willing to be virtuous." The Spanish people have, outside of the Royal Court, been seemingly virtuous enough, but have evidently not expected to be free, and it was this lethargy from which the Queen borrowed her license and upon which she based her calculations. But the time which everybody knew must come, seems to have come at last. The last of the Bourbons is flying throneless from the scenes of fearful misrule of which she was mistress; and General PRIM basks once more in the smiles of that fortune whose back was so recently turned upon him. If he uses his opportunities honestly, if he keeps his faith with the people, Spain may now be taking a stride which will place her in the front rank of free countries, and which will be a shining example to the other nations in the South of Europe.

A TRAGEDIAN IN FARCE.

The Democracy of Allegheny county are to be addressed by General BLAIR, their Vice Presidential candidate, on Monday next. He is also to address other meetings of his political friends in Western Pennsylvania during the week following. It is generally supposed that the author of the well known letter to BRODHEAD has been detailed to service in this region, and that he is specially charged with the duty of attempting to palliate and explain away the offensive points in that very remarkable document, as well as the "three words" with which WADE HAMPTON committed the National Democracy to their reiteration and support. The managers of that party have come to perceive that the people of Pennsylvania, as of all other loyal States, have not welcomed these menaces of another civil war with their approval. The conviction that very serious peril to the public peace will result from the election of a candidate pledged to such revolutionary purposes, is as general as it is profound. Democratic leaders, therefore, propose to devote the closing hours of the canvass to an effort to remedy the mischief which their indiscreet frankness has inflicted upon Democratic prospects. For this purpose, they have selected General BLAIR himself, as the most suitable commentator upon a text of which he has been substantially the author.

We trust that he may be more successful here in his efforts in this direction than he has been elsewhere. At Indianapolis, on the 23d, he delivered a speech, from a carefully prepared manuscript, through which we have sought in vain for some satisfactory explanation of his proposal to ignore one branch of the government because it is not likely to agree with him in opinion, and to convert another department from a Constitutional Executive into an irresponsible and despotic Dictatorship.

His speech made no allusion whatever to points which the people very justly regard as of transcendent importance in this canvas; instead, his theme is "negro equality and negro suffrage," and his entire speech a long-drawn and feeble rehash of appeals to vulgar prejudice and of flimsy perversions of history and ethnological science, to make political capital against the "nigger." A hundred Democratic journals have long since said the same things, and quite as effectively. In a few concluding words, he denounces the reconstruction acts as "immoral, indecent and unconstitutional," but carefully avoids saying how these acts should be overthrown. So lame and impotent a conclusion, from the fire-eating author of the most violent and revolutionary expressions and menaces known in our political history, has scarcely consequence or dignity enough to be laughed at. When FRANK BLAIR thus endeavors to "roar you as gently as any sucking dove," when his brief engagements upon the Keystone stage shall be, as it seems intended to be for the sole purpose of proving to his audiences that he is no wild animal, but only Bottom the Weaver, who has donned a dead lion's skin, it will then be manifest that he is cast in a most unsuitable part, and the transparent humbug of the stage-trick will be as palpable as ridiculous.

The people of this region will expect something else from Gen. BLAIR. They will anticipate either an adroit explanation, a bold defense or a manly retraction of the opinions which have given to this canvass its leading importance. If he meets the public expectations in either regard, it will be well; if he is kept in leading strings, and offers to his auditors an entertainment as insipid and puerile as that at Indianapolis, they may well say to him as was said to FALCONBRIDGE:—

> Thou wear a lion's hide?
> Go, hang a calf's skin on those recreant limbs!

SPITE, CHAGRIN, DISAPPOINTMENT, MALICE, ENVY and DEMOCRACY characterized every word of the Post's description (?) of the great Republican Demonstration of Thursday. Spite, because every notice of the Post on the Republican transparencies was bitter, disgraceful truth. Chagrin, because there were more voters in the line of procession than there are in the whole Democratic party in Allegheny county. Disappointment, because in despite of storm and rain, the eyes that looked from the windows of the Post building never gazed on such a good tempered, enthusiastic, orderly and enormous a crowd, every member of which had either look or word of scorn for the Post. Malice, as displayed in its attack on General SWEITZER, because, unlike some members of the Democratic party, he has a conscience and obeys its dictates when he votes. We need only say here that Mayor BLACKMORE and two ex-officers, only less distinguished than Gen. SWEITZER, and both of them Democrats, were quite as near the fight on Fourth street as was the gallant General, and yet did not interfere, nor in their communication to the Post did they mention this fact. Envy, because next month they are to have a sort of display in the Post's faction, and they know it will not be large enough to make a decent delegation for the Thursday's procession. Hatred, as shown in its frequent accusations of drunkenness and indecency; whereas a gentleman, quite as reliable as any authority the Post can quote, assured us that he had been unable to see as much intoxication in the mammoth turn out as he generally does in an ordinary petty ward demonstrations of the Locofocos. And Democracy was displayed in the whole account, but more especially in the figuring, which we quote. The excellence of the Post as a mathematical authority was displayed in its frequent returns from Maine, an exactitude for which its adherents paid many thousands of dollars within the month. Of Thursday's procession it says:

"A count was made from the Custom House, showing the following figures: Brass bands, 11; drum corps, 11; wagons, 376; carriages containing bondholders, 49; horses, 763; transparencies, 149; cannon, 5; policemen, 70; Tanner clubs, 20; total number of tanners, 897. Whole number of persons in the column, including officers, high privates, wet little girls and boys, &c., 4,955. Time occupied in passing, including stoppages, two hours and twelve minutes."

Any one who saw the procession on Fifth Avenue is able to appreciate this fine figurative joke.

THE "POST" AND GEN. SWEITZER.

The fact that Gen. SWEITZER'S Democratic antecedents and affinities were not strong enough to enable him to go with the leaders of that party in their unaptriotic and suicidal policy, and especially that his noble nature drew him irresistibly to the support of his old commander, seems to trouble the Democratic journals, as we infer from their testimony, daily repeated, that he carries to the Republicans no more than his own vote. The readers of these journals will remember that two years ago the same witnesses, regarding him as the strongest man in their party, ran him for Congress and that he received a larger vote than any candidate on their ticket. We suppose the morning Post will swear by its Roosters that Gen. JOHN A. DIX, JAMES T. BRADY and JOHN J. CISCO, all hitherto great luminaries of Democracy, but now avowed GRANT men, are of no account and carry with them to the polls no votes but their own!

If the Post did not know that the defection of such men as SWEITZER, DIX, BRADY and CISCO was the pulling down of the very pillars of their Democratic Temple, it would not strive so persistently to divert the attention of its readers from its pregnant significancy, its dire foretokening of disaster.

MELODRAMATIC REVIVAL.

The old Pittsburgh Theatre, which has been closed for some months, has been reopened by Manager WALLACE and an indifferent stock company, for a brief season of Democratic melodrama. We understand that the enterprising management contemplates a series of "star" performances, to be sustained by distinguished artists from Clearfield and other well-known boards. Conspicuous among the sensation pieces to be presented we may announce "Coffee-pots and Bludgeons, or the Way to Quiet Troublesome Witnesses," the roles of Casey and his murderers to be taken by members of the Democratic Executive Committee. Before the end of the season, the highly wrought play of "The Three K's—a Democratic view of the Constitution," will also be offered to the public. It is also intimated that the season will be inaugurated with "The Mid-Summer Night's Dream," the part of Bottom being assigned to a distinguished military Democrat whose second appearance in that character on any stage is expected on Monday next.

We congratulate the public upon the prospective revival of high Art at that favorite place of amusement.

WHO CAN VOTE.

For the purpose of instructing those who may not know the law on the subject, we herewith publish the qualifications of electors in this State. It will be observed that assessments must be made ten days before the election in the election district where the vote is offered. The time for attending to this inexorable requirement of the law is well nigh up, and those who have not yet been assessed should delay the matter no longer. Ascertain where the assessor of your election district resides and at once make his acquaintance and have your name enrolled. Here is the law:

To qualify a person to vote, it is necessary that he shall be white, of the age of twenty-one years or more. 2. Shall have resided in this State at least one year. 3. And in the election district where he offers to vote at least ten days immediately preceding the election. 4. And within two years have paid a State or county tax which shall have been assessed at least ten days before the election. A citizen of the United States, who had previously been a qualified voter of this State, and removed therefrom and returned, and who shall have resided in the election district and paid taxes as aforesaid, shall be entitled to vote after residing in this State six months; while white citizens of the United States, between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-two years, and having resided in this State one year and in the election district ten days, as aforesaid, shall be entitled to vote, although they shall not have paid taxes.

IT IS quite refreshing to note the efforts now being made by the Democratic journals throughout the country to relieve the rebels of Georgia from any blame in the late terrible riot of Camilla. It comes with very poor taste from such journals to defend as law-loving, peaceable citizens, those whose hands are yet dripping with the blood of the brave boys who fell in defence of the country while they were arrayed against it. The people of the North should by this time at least, know how to appreciate the lamb like character of the rebels of the South, and how keenly they love the law and enjoy the peace secured through its observance. These Northern apologists are the same who magnified Southern victories and detracted from the glory of the achievements of the Union arms during the rebellion. They apologized for treason, excused rebellion, gilded over the barbarity of the rebels having charge of the prison pens, made heroes of land thieves and assassins in the name of guerrilias, and lauded to the skies the brilliant daring of pirates on the high seas sailing under the flag of the Confederate States. These men would now prove false to their past records if they failed to become apologists for rebel rioters and terrorists, but the people will not be deceived by their statements coined in the interest of the Southern wing of the new party of revolution.

THROUGHOUT the State the Republican camp fire is burning brightly and the loyal clans are gathering in their might for the great battle at the ballot box in October. Pennsylvania is not doubtful. To a certainty she will award such a Republican majority in October as will show in an unmistakable manner how she stands on the questions which have entered into the canvass. The Democracy have no hopes for carrying the State; they would abandon the struggle to-morrow if it were not that they cling so tenaciously to the bare hope of something turning up which may turn the tide in favor of their revolutionary principles. They cast their eyes beyond Pennsylvania for encouragement and propose to find it in New York, New Jersey and Kentucky, all of which States they rely upon as going largely Democratic, but Pennsylvania they abandon as hopeless in the present aspect of the case. Let the Republicans be cheered to new exertions while the opposition stand inert and palsied from the glorious news received from Vermont and Maine. Let more effective blows be dealt square home upon them by active, unceasing and effective work between this and the October day of election, and the country will be called to look upon the saddest case of demoralization and route ever known in American history.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

The Independent discusses the question of "Church Suffrage" in Congregational churches at great length, especially the right of females to vote. The advocates of exclusive male suffrage contend that the usage in the churches forbids female suffrage, and the Scripture also discountenances it. In reply to the first it argues that there is no precedent which denies the right of suffrage to females, and secondly, that the Scripture does not condemn it, but is silent upon the subject. These points are elaborated. It claims that the essential principles of Congregationalism are: 1. Every member of a Congregational church has equal rights, powers and privileges with every other member. 2. The membership, by majority vote, have the right and duty of choosing all necessary officers, of admitting, disciplining and dismissing members, and transacting all other appropriate business of a Christian Church. The membership of each church being usually composed of two-thirds of females, as the majority, it contends they have a right to vote and exercise all the powers and privileges of membership.

At the Universalist General Convention, held last week at Providence, Rhode Island, it was determined to hold, in 1870, a centennial anniversary of the establishment of the denomination in this country, at Gloucester, Mass., where the first church was founded a century ago.

Rev. Francis E. Abbott, of Dover, N. H., has announced his belief that Christianity must perish, and has caused a division in the society of which he is pastor. His friends being in the majority, they are trying to hold the church. The minority have procured an injunction on the ground that the house belongs to the First Unitarian church of Christians, in Dover, whereas the Abbott party do not claim to be Christian. The question is now before the Supreme Court of the State.

There are two mission (Methodist Episcopal) churches in the Jamestown, Scandinavian Mission, and the third one is just ready for dedication. These are the outcome of placing a little Swedish "maid" to reside with a benevolent and pious family in Jamestown.

The New Orleans Methodist Christian Advocate, Dr. Newman editor, thinks that it molds the opinion of fifty thousand colored voters. We suppose the Southern religious papers will not relish this "political" paper, and, of course, it will be hated by those opposed to negro suffrage.

David Pattulo, the proprietor of a well known drinking-hole called "Cobweb Hall," in Duane street, New York, and the home of the Democratic cannaille, died recently. For twenty years he followed his execrable trade, and yet, according to the papers, died in the profession of faith. The Independent well says that Church-ianity and Christ-ianity are two things.

The recent auction sale of pews in the magnificent new Jewish Synagogue in New York city, reached the amount of seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars, which puts out all indebtedness, and places over one hundred thousand dollars in the sinking fund.

The members of the Association of Old Defenders, of Baltimore, numbering about forty-five members, as usual on their anniversary occasion, recently, attended divine service in a body at Light street M. E. church, Baltimore.

Notwithstanding the American Board of Foreign Missions had grave apprehensions that the fiscal year would close with a heavy debt resting upon them, by the generous contributions of the friends of Missions, one hundred and forty thousand dollars were contributed during the month of August, and the Secretary has announced that the Treasurer will not be required to report any indebtedness to the next Annual Meeting.

Mr. William Getty, of Philadelphia, formerly a resident of this city, and well known to many of our readers, was nominated for Moderator of the United Presbyterian Synod of New York, at its late session at Broadalbin, N. Y. This was an unusual feature to nominate a ruling elder for this office. He lacked but a few votes of being elected.

The Trustees of the Second Presbyterian Church of Cincinnati, Ohio, have been offered two hundred thousand dollars for their church property, with the intention of erecting stores upon the site.

Madison University, Hamilton, New York, under the care of the Baptists, is in a very prosperous condition. The endowment fund now reaches one hundred and eighty thousand dollars, producing a revenue of fifteen thousand dollars. Recently two new professors have been installed.

Rev. C. C. A. Brandt, who left the Lutheran Church several years ago, and subsequently became editor of a Roman Catholic newspaper in Buffalo, has renounced Romanism, and proposes, says the Presbyterian, to spend the rest of his days in laboring for the truth as confessed by the Church to which he originally belonged.

It is stated the time table of the Union Pacific Railroad is the same for the seven days in the week. Many will regret to learn the fact that God's law is impiously trampled upon by this great corporation.

The New York Ministerim of the High Church Lutherans, denounced "secret societies," of all sorts, as incompatible with the General-Council Lutheranism. The Lutheran Observer says nine-tenths of the German Lutherans belong to such organizations.

A Georgia orator, at a political barbacue, in his representations of Union men, quotes the Bible in condemnation of them where it says: "The wicked abound on every hand, and the vilest rule." He argued these (Union) men were false to their race. He particularly urged upon the audience to ponder well the following: "I hate them. It is a Christian duty to hate them. No man will ever get to heaven unless he hates them." That's Southern Gospel!

The Triennial General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States will be held on the 7th of October in the City of New York. It is thought all the States will be represented for the first time since 1859, and the Convention will comprise a larger number of bishops and divines than any former council. Much important business will come before the Convention. Among the most important will be the erection of several new dioceses and missionary jurisdictions. The subject of readjusting the Canons and many other important questions will likely be discussed.

It is stated in a "floating" paragraph there are nine gilded crosses on the steeple of Rev. Dr. Lord's church in Montpelier, Vermont.

The New School Presbyterians of New York are just completing a most magnificent house of worship. It combines comfort, safety and elegance, and will cost about a quarter of a million of dollars.

Bishop Ames, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, recently stated to a large conference of ministers, that a large portion of the funds for worn out ministers is paid to men mentally and physically disqualified by the use of tobacco. The anti-tobacco feeling is becoming so strong in some of the Methodist conferences that there is a probability that young men using tobacco, and desiring to enter the ministry, will be required to abandon the practice before they are received on trial.

The Scaffold at Worcester, Mass.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

WORCESTER, Sept. 25.—Silas and Charles S. James, who murdered Joseph G. Clark, in this city, on the night of the 28th of February last, were executed at eighteen minutes before eleven o'clock this forenoon. The execution took place in the chapel of the jail, and the scaffold used was the same on which Prof. Webster, Green and other murderers were executed.

At half past ten o'clock the condemned entered the chapel with their arms pinioned and mounted the scaffold. High Sheriff Knowlton then gave them an opportunity to speak. Silas merely thanked the officers for their kindness, and hoped to meet them in heaven. Charles followed in a rambling and incoherent manner for about fifteen minutes, and confessed that they were guilty. The bodies fell about eight feet. Charles died hard. Silas' neck was broken in the fall, and he died instantly. The bodies were delivered to the relatives.

HAS SUMMER ENFEEBLED YOU?

Nine out of every ten to whom this question is addressed, if they answer it candidly, will answer it in the affirmative. Some may reply to it from a sick bed; others, of a stronger constitution and greater powers of endurance, may only experience a slight lassitude as the consequence of the torrid season. But some portion of the vitality of all human beings oozes out of them under the pressure of great and continuous heat, and the sooner the loss is completely repaired, the less susceptible will the system be to the unhealthy influence of the Fall malaria.

The most genial and wholesome tonic that has ever been offered to man—as a means of recruiting his exhausted strength, and fortifying him against the attacks of disease—is HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. Taken at this season it is a perfect safeguard against intermittent fever, bilious affections, and all the epidemics which follow close upon the expiration of the Summer. It is an invigorant and alterative without any of the drawbacks which attach to mere stimulants, and is the only preparation of the kind which a conscientious physician would feel inclined to prescribe for ladies in delicate health. Nothing can be more pure, more harmless, more certain to restore the vigor of the system permanently and thoroughly, without exciting the pulse or the brain.

DISEASED LUNGS.

There is no doubt whatever that diseases of the lungs, or ulcers of whatever sort, on any of the internal organs may be and are frequently cured, and a complete condition of health established. If the elaborative functions, of which the stomach is the primary and most important one, are restored to a condition to do the repairing of the human system, ulcers or sores, whether upon the lungs the liver, the kidneys or the bowels, or upon the legs, as is frequently the case, can be made to heal, and a complete standard of health re-established.

We have frequently seen these results from the use of Dr. KEYSER'S LUNG CURE, a pleasant and agreeable medicine, which will ripen up and carry out the animal economy all effete and used up material. Dr. KEYSER'S LUNG CURE is enriched by some of the most valuable plants and herbs known to be useful and curative in all deteriorated states of the human blood, and whilst it adds to its plasma, it at the same time stimulates, gently but effectively, the skin, the kidneys, the liver and the glandular system to sufficient action to enable the body to take on healthful action and eradicate the disease. The sick and afflicted should bear in mind the virtues of this great medicine, and if those who are sufficiently alive to the importance of health, will resort to it in the beginning of a cough or cold, there would be no falling into declines and rapid consumption, so hopelessly incurable, and so most surely fatal. Let any one afflicted with any pulmonary disease try but one bottle, and they will be convinced of the value of Dr. Keyser's Lung Cure. Sold by the gross, dozen or single bottle, at Dr. KEYSER'S Great Medicine Store, 140 Wood St. DR. FINANCE AND TRADE.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, FRIDAY, September 25, 1868.

Gold was strong all day at from 141¾ to 142½, with an advancing tendency. The attempt to bring down the market to 140 has failed, and the large short interest created by the bears makes them anxious cover as low as they can do.

In Governments the market was rather strong, but at lower rates. An advance of gold would bring in large purchasers for bonds at present quotations.

Stocks are firm, and rather on the point of advancing than on a decline; the cliques are able to buy any stocks offering, even at quotations, and thereby sustain the market and assist in advancing prices.

Money is easy, but business is rather inactive.

Closing quotations as received by Ph. R. Mertz: Gold, 142½; Eighty-one's, 113¾; Five Twenties, 1862, 113¾; do, 1864, 109⅝; do, 1865, 110¼; do, 1865, new, 108⅞; do, 1867, 109; do, 1868; 109¼; Ten Forties, 101⅝. —Says the Chicago Tribune, of Thursday, says: There was considerably less grain paid for at the banks to-day than usual, as there was but little movement in the way of shipments eastward. The money market, however, continues to work very close. There are indications that some of the banks, in anticipation of their quarterly statements, are endeavoring to contract their line of loans and discounts, and there seems a fair prospect that a more pressing time than has yet been felt this fall, will be experienced between now and the 5th of October. The report of the amount of flour and grain held in store here, on the night of Saturday, September 19th, shows an increase of over three hundred thousand bushels of wheat, and, though the quantity of oats, corn and flour has diminished, the aggregate value of grain held here has increased considerably during last week, and is doing so yet, thus operating to lock up that much capital and aiding to create monetary stringency.

—Closing quotations received by James T. Brady & Co.: Gold, 142¼; United States Sixes, 1881's, 114; 5-20's, 1862, 114; 5-20's, 1864, 109⅞; 5-20's, 1865, 110⅝; 10-40's, 108⅞; 5-20's, January and July, '65, 108⅜; 5-20's, January and July, '67 108⅞; '68, 109⅛; June 7-30's, par less ¼; July 7-30's, do ¼; August 119; Sept., 119½; Oct. 118½; Union Pacific Railroad, 102; Central, 103.

PITTSBURGH METAL MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, FRIDAY, September 25, 1868.

The market for metal has been less active this week, which was owing to the bad weather and excitement attending the Convention; notwithstanding the sales are much smaller, in the aggregate, than last week, the market is firm and prices are well sustained, and the demand keeps fully up with the supply. The receipts by river have been large this week, but the great proportion of that now arriving will have to be put in on old contracts, so that the amount really thrown on the market will not be as large as many have been led to believe.

We are requested to state that the 200 tons of "Chickies No. 3," reported last week, was not the product of the Chickies Furnace, in Lancaster county, Pa.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, FRIDAY, September 24, 1868.

The inclement condition of the weather tended very much to cripple out-door business to-day, which, at best, has been nothing to brag of for some time past. The only important feature we have to notice in connection with the general markets, is a still further decline in Wheat and Flour in the west. It was thought some time since that prices had touched bottom, and it is possible that they may go lower yet, though the general impression is that the bottom has been reached. Within the last sixty days Spring Wheat Flour has declined fully two dollars per barrel, and Spring Wheat is down about 40c per bushel. Winter Wheat is also lower, but it has not declined in proportion with Spring Wheat.

APPLES—Are coming in quite freely, but with a steady demand, prices are pretty well sustained, ranging from $3 to $4 per bbl.

POTATOES—Dull, and cannot be quoted above $1 per bushel, and $3 per barrel. Sweets scarcer and firmer; $6,00 to $6,50 per bbl.

BUTTER—Is in better supply, but as yet prices are unchanged at 35 to 40c.

EGGS—Steady, with sales of fresh packed at 23c.

CHEESE—Quiet and unchanged at 15 to 16 for Western Reserve and Hamburg; 17 to 18c for Factory and Goshen, and 19c to 20c for Sweitzer.

SEEDS—Sales of Timothy Seed at $3,50 to $3,75, and Flax Seed at $2,45 to $2,50. Clover Seed is dull and nominal at $8,75 to $9.

PROVISIONS—Bacon is quiet and unchanged at 14 to 14¼ for Shoulders: 16½ for Ribbed and 18 to 18¼ for Clear Sides, and 21 to 22 for Sugar Cured Hams. Lard is quoted at 20 to 20½c, in tierces, and 22, in kegs. Mess Pork, $31 to $31,50.

CRANBERRIES—Sales of new crop, eastern, at $20 to $24.

BEESWAX—Is quoted at 35 to 40c.

LARD OIL—Is quiet and unchanged at $1,20 for No. 2, and $1,50 for No. 1.

SALT—Is dull and unchanged at $1,75 to $1,80 to the trade, and $2, in a retail way.

GRAIN—There is nothing doing in Wheat, and we do not hear of any established prices; taking the Western markets as a basis, prime Winter cannot be fairly quoted above $2. Rye is quiet but unchanged at $1,40. Oats firm with a moderate demand at 65 to 66c on track, and 68 to 70c for small lots in store. Corn is quiet and a little weak but unchanged; last sales at $1,14 to $1,17 for mixed to prime Yellow. Barley is quiet and in limited supply; No. 2 Chicago may be quoted at $1,90, and prime Penna. and Ohio at $2.

MILL FEED—Is very dull but unhanged at $1,10 for Bran; $1,30 for Shipstuffs, and $2 for Middlings.

FLOUR—Is dull and weak with a drooping tendency. We now quote good to choice Spring $9 to $9,50. The mills continue to quote at $10,50 for Extra Family, in barrels, and $10,20, in sacks, and Double Extra at $11, in barrels, and $10,70, in sacks. Rye Flour, $8,75.

WHISKY—The market continues firm and as but few of the distilleries are in operation, in consequence of the high price of grain, it is not likely that the supply which is now very light, will be much increased. We quote at present rectified per gallon $1,30; highwines per gallon $1,40; half rye and half corn per gallon $1,75; old Monongahela two years old, per gallon $2,25; and old Monongahela three years old $3,50 per gallon.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, FRIDAY, September 25, 1868.

The Petroleum market, both Crude and Refined, was very unsettled, and irregular to-day, and the fact that Antwerp has dropped two and a half francs, staggered the bulls somewhat, and brought the bears out from their holes. At no time this year, perhaps, was "bluffing" so much in vogue as it was to-day: indeed the business seemed to have resolved itself into a regular game of "bluff," and as already intimated the "bears" seemed to have the best of the game. Wild offers were made, both to buy and sell, and just about as quickly, withdrawn, the main object being to sound the "parties" to whom these offers were made. We are cognizant of one party having been "bluffed" into paying two hundred barre,s for a "refusal" of one thousand dollars for October a 12½—subsequently the buyer tried to impress the seller with the fact that it was all a joke, but (the seller) failed to see it in that light.

CRUDE.

The Crude market was very unsettled and irregular to-day; it opened about where it left off on Thursdey evening, but as the day advanced, under the influence of free offers to sel l, prices fell off somewhat, and closed considerably lower. Sale of 1,000 each for October, November and December at 12c; 1,000 for October at 12½c; 500 next fifteen days at 12½c; 1,000, all year, seller, at 11½c; 1,000 each for October, November and December at 11¾c, and 1,000 for first half October at 12c. At the close, there were offers to sell September and October at 12c—we heard of one offer having been made to sell October at 11¾c.

REFINED.

The market was exceedingly quiet today, not a single sale reported, though, compared with yesterday, prices are off fully half a cent. We now quote September at 32½c, and October at 32c, against 33, yesterday, for the former, and 32½c for the latter.

New York Dry Goods Market.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

NEW YORK, September 25.—The market for certain styles of Brown Cottons is weak and prices lower for choice makes of fine goods. The Broadway Unbleached Sheetings are reduced to 12½c; Standard to 12c; Pepperell R to 13½c; Pepperell E to 14½c; Atlantic P to 12½c; Atlantic V to 13½c; Indian Orchard B B to 12½c. Washington Cambrics reduced to 8½a9½c for common and high colors, but are a little irregular, as common colors still sold at extreme figures by some dealers. Heavy Brown Sheetings steady at 15½a16, and Prints 12½a13 for standard makes. In Woolens the trade is rather inactive, if we except flannels, blankets and hosiery, which are in lively request. The market as a general thing is strong in sympathy with a rapid rise in the price of wool, although some concession is being made in fancy styles of fine fabrics.

Chicago Cattle Market.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

CHICAGO, September 25.—Beef cattle dull at $3a4,50 for common to extra choice cows, $5,12½a5,75 for fair to medium steers, and $6a6,12½ for good shipping steers. Hogs quiet and easier, and 15a25c lower on common to medium grades; sales at $8a8,25 for inferior to common, $8,50a8,80 for fair to medium, and $9a9,90 for good smooth lots.

FASHIONS.

Translated from Le Follet.

All sorts of gay colors are continually worn, and the contrast of the various shades gives our toilets an almost Oriental appearance. I have seen material with pale gold and purple stripes, for instance, which looked exceedingly pretty. The tunic was looped back en paniers, but unicolored, while the hat of Italian straw, had small clusters of cherries, scattered in a most original manner, for ornaments. Almost every tunic assumes now-a-days the form of a square or rounded apron in front and of paniers behind, more or less looped up. For full dress toilets next Winter this description of costumes will be worn altogether. The style for Winter hats is also forecasting its shadow already. As might have been expected, they will have high crowns. The principal ornaments will be puffs, feathers, and aigrettes. This style of head-dress will be admirably adapted for the costumes of the Louis XV, and Louis XVI. age, which are so far from going out of fashion as to become still more complete, and powder and beauty spots are seriously spoken of. In the mean time, the fashion of head-dresses is mixed, neither high nor low. Flat chignons on the head, small hats with flat caps, narrow fanchonettes with flower puffs, are all the rage. To return to costumes. I have seen a very pretty one on the beach of Trouville. A round skirt of silver-gray Mexican silk had a high flounce and a fold of scarrabee-taffeta for ornaments; an apron of the same material was bordered with a small flounce and a fold of scarabee-taffeta at the top. What was visible of the back part of the skirt looked very original on account of a knot of a scarabee sash being fastened to it, while the sleeves of the dress were half-tight fitting and ended in a puffing of the same material as the dress. The toquet of a very fine silver-gray straw was bordered with scarabee satin. The somewhat high cap had a lustre of scarabee feathers for ornament which fell gracefully down on one side over the ringlets of the chignon, which had been put very high on the back part of the head. Another not less original costume was made of green glaced silk, the lower skirt had pipings of flounces placed below at certain distances from each other, while the upper skirt looped back in three paniers repeated the same trimming on a smaller scale. The waist was cut square in front, and completed by a Marie Antoinette mantelet, knotted on the chest by a Papillon knot and falling down over the sides so as to become fastened—behind at the top of the skirt a few centimeters lower than the waist. This mantelet is bordered by pipings at certain distances, and moreover ornamented with microscopic knots, visible on the intervals left by the pipings. A splendid dinner costume has just been finished for the Marquise of V. It is a vapory skirt of white gauze held up en paniers in a very original manner, over a turquois blue transparent, by a large turquois blue sash. The waist is cut low and square, and has very rich wide lace, fastened by turquois clasps all round the shoulders.

I am at a loss what to say of linen wear Bonnets always keep the fanchon or the Catalan style, and only vary in the style of borders. The most becoming is a Catalan bonnet of embroidered muslin. A ribbon, corresponding in shade to the toilet, forms a square which indicates the top of the head, and falls down under the chignon which it half covers. Small knots of embroidered muslin and of ribbon form the front of the bonnet, while two long ribbons float behind. Another pattern is the guipure fanchon. The front of the bonnet is looped back over the top of the head in two points bordered by a narrow ribbon. A flounce of guipure serves as an ornament for the back part, and extends in flaps fastened under the chin by a rich guipure lace covering a knot of ribbon.

MM. DUVE and Lemaire, two young mechanics in Paris, have invented a new kind of safety lock. The key opens the lock without ringing the bells; but if a false key be introduced, a "jemmy," or any piece of metal, the bells are set going as long as the piece is applied. This is effected by the disposal of the several tumblers with regard to a small lever which completes the battery circuit when elevated. When all the tumblers are lifted simultaneously, as by the master key, the lever is not raised and no alarm is given; but if one, or two, or three be lifted the alarm lever is raised and the ringing takes place. If the burglar, knowing the mechanism of the lock, try to force the lock plate by any of the usual burglars' instruments, as soon as the metal is attempted to be wedged in the ringing commences. The safety lock can be applied to all doors or fastenings without distinction. The acting agent of alarm is a feeble current of electricity, produced by a small battery of two elements. The pile used is that of Leclanche (small model), with peroxide of manganese and a single liquid, which does not require touching for several months, and then even a little water is all that is necessary to replace that lost by evaporation. The master key is protected by an insulating substance, so that when introduced it establishes no contact, nor does it raise the alarm lever when the tumblers are lifted. Now, supposing a burglar to have a dozen or so isolated keys, he could introduce any one of them silently, but on his attempting to turn it, the wards not being those of the master key, the alarm would be continuously given, and put an end to his experiments, so that he could not try one key after another.

LONDON is greatly concerned about its supply of water. Enormous sums have already been expended to secure a supply, but something more is needed. Five new schemes have been presented. They embrace the source of the Severn, the Cumberland Lakes, the Thames water filtered through the Bagshot sands, reservoirs placed near the sources of the Thames, and the waters flowing down the Derbyshire and Staffordshire hills. All these may be called great and costly undertakings—two of them even immensely so. Either one of these plans, if adopted, will cost between sixty and seventy millions of dollars. Now every gallon of water delivered in London has to be pumped up from nearly the sea level to an average height of 250 feet, and then the supply is unreliable, while the people pay one shilling and five pence in the pound sterling water tax.

THE officers of the Mont Cenis Railway Company are engaged in remedying the damage done by the late heavy rains. It has been decided that the fragments of rock hitherto employed, and which are easily carried away, shall be replaced by heavy blocks measuring at least ten metres cube, and capable of resisting the most impetuous current. The cost will amount to less than 500,000 francs. The expense of the reconstruction of the railway is estimated at 600,000 francs.

DISRAELI, it is asserted by the English papers, will probably make another of his bold political changes of opinion. The Pall Mall Gazette, from a sentence in Sir J. Packington's election address, draws the conclusion that Mr. Disraeli is preparing to throw over the Irish Church, and again divert the popular feeling from the Liberal party towards himself.

How to Sleep in Church.

Assuming that it is a duty, let us consider the manner of performing it. Like all Christian practices, there should be uniformity in the manner:

First—It is an improper manner in performing this duty to nod, and for the plain reason that it attracts too much attention. We are everywhere taught to avoid ostentatious display in our whole worship. The Pharisees were condemned for praying at corners of the street, that they might be seen of men. On the same principle the nodding worshipper is making too public a display of his devotions;

Second—Nor is it proper to snore in the performance of this duty—partly for the forgoing reasons; but mainly because it is a direct infraction of the golden rule. Suppose, for instance that your next neighbor is asleep, by your snoring he will be disturbed, probably awakened. This is not doing unto others as you would they should do unto you.

Third—It is wrong to injure one's health while offering worship; and all physicians admit that to sleep with the head thrown back and mouth wide open is liable to produce sore throat and hoarseness. Besides, flies sometimes get into the mouth on such occasions, and by their injurious explorations tickle the delicate membranes and cause horrible sternutations and coughing, which is very injurious to health.

Fourth—To sleep with the head resting upon the arms of the worshipper, and the face buried up in the cuffs of the coat, is the most improper way of offering sleep worship. First, because it is also injurious to health, and mainly, because it is a direct violation of the Scriptures, which commands us to let our light so shine that men may profit by our example. In this case it is impossible to know whether the Christian worshipper is asleep or awake. It is a positive case of lukewarmness—neither the one thing nor the other.

Removing a Tight Finger Ring.

It is seldom necessary to file off a ring which is too tight to readily pass the joint of the finger. If the finger is swollen, apply cold water to reduce the inflamation, then wrap a small wet rag wet in hot water around the ring to expand the metal, and soap the finger. A needle threaded with strong silk can then be passed between the ring and finger, and a person holding the two ends and pulling the silk while slowly sliding it around the periphery of the ring may readily remove the ring. If the ring is a plain hoop, this process is easy; if it has a setting or protuberance more care will be required. Another method is to pass a piece of sewing silk under the ring and wind the thread in pretty close spirals and snugly around the finger to the end. Then take the lower end—that below the ring—and begin unwinding. The ring is certain to be removed unless the silk is very weak. The winding compresses the finger and renders the operation less difficult.

JAPAN.—The commissioners sent from Japan to the United States to purchase vessels of war, and who recently returned to Japan in the ram Stonewall Jackson, have fled to San Francisco, it being unsafe for them to remain in Yokohama during the present political disturbances. The leaders of the Southern faction have threatened to decapitate them if captured. The earthquake wave occurred in the harbor of Yokohama the day following that convulsion of nature in South America.

* * *

MEXICO.—Recent advices from California state that in Sonora and Sinaloa the desire for annexation to the United States is very strong among the intelligent classes. The Mexican Government is organizing its forces in the States of Guadalajara, Durango and Sinaloa, with the intention of attacking General Lagoda, at Lepre, as soon as the dry season permits. General Lagoda is also making extensive preparations to resist the Government forces.

AN IMPERIAL MATCH.—The advocates of the annexation of Belgium to France have suggested the idea of a marriage between the young Princess Marie Amelia of Belgium, and the Prince Imperial. In case no other male heir is born to King Leopold, the union of France and Belgium would be effected without war and without opposition from England.

Open Air Meeting.--To-morrow (Sunday) afternoon, at a quarter past 4 o'clock, there will be an open air meeting held under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, on Duquesne Way, above Suspension Bridge.

Mass Meeting.—There will be held a grand mass meeting to-night in the Diamond Square by the Republicans of Allegheny. Hon. Lewis Baker, from glorious old Maine, where Republican majorities vault over 20,000, will speak.

Slight Fire.—The alarm of fire on Thursday afternoon was caused by a slight fire which broke out on the roof of the building occupied by Mr. Baker, in the Diamond. The fire was promptly extinguished, with but little damage to the house.

The Grand Jury will meet on Monday next, September 28th, at ten o'clock, and will continue in session during the week. Prosecutors who have not already appeared, are requested to do so at once, and save themselves trouble and expense.

Tent Preaching.—To-morrow (Sunday) afternoon at a quarter-past four o'clock there will be tent service held under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, at the corner of Fayette and Chartiers streets, Manchester, weather permitting.

Y. M. C. A.--The regular monthly meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association will be held in their rooms, No. 23 Fifth avenue, this (Saturday) evening, at half past seven o'clock. A full attendance is requested, as business of importance will be transacted.

Severe Fall.—Thomas Coffin yesterday fell off a flight of stone steps in front of the tavern on the corner of Canal street and Mulberry alley, cutting a large gash in the back of his head, from which the blood flowed profusely. He was removed to the Mayor's office and his injuries attended to.

New House.—Mr. B. Tiegel, late cutter with Mr. Hespenheide, has opened a merchant tailoring store at No. 53 Smithfield street, where will be found a new stock of cloths, cassimeres and vestings. Mr. Tiegel is a gentleman of skill and taste, and readers who favor him with patronage may rely on being satisfactorily dealt with.

Improving.—It gives us pleasure to state that Mr. W. F. Hood, the gentleman who was injured by the premature discharge of a cannon on Thursday morning, was much better yesterday. The injury is not so serious as was at first supposed, and it is thought he will not be permanently disabled, a fact which his many friends will be pleased to learn.

Is you would enjoy a fragrant Havana or delicious Cuba cigar drop in at John Megraw's headquarters for tobacco, snuff and cigars, No. 54 Hand street. No where else in the city can you be better pleased, for no where else is the stock larger or finer. A full line of cigar tubes and meerschaum pipes, of the best quality, at most reasonable prices. Dealers who buy to sell again dealt with liberally. s

Felonious Assault.-- Charles Geissler made information yesterday before Alderman Taylor against Mrs. Mamson and Mrs. Caney for malicious mischief and assault and battery. Geissler is proprietor of a tavern in the Ninth werd, and he alleges that the defendants came there and getting into a row, beat his wife, broke two of his windows and smashed things gennerally. Warrants were issued.

Trover and Conversion.—Mrs. Margaret Gibson made information yesterday before Aldermen Strain against E. J. Munro for trover and conversion. It is alleged that the defendant obtained property belonging to deponent, consisting of a lot of household furniture and wearing apparel, valued at ninety-nine dollars and fifty cents, which he refuses to return. The accused was arrested and held for a hearing.

Committed.—Lawrence Fox, who shot James Welsh in the Republican torchlight procession, had a hearing before the Mayor, and in default of bail was committed for a hearing ten days hence, the injured man being unable to leave his room at the present time. The shot took effect between the shoulders of Mr. Welsh and inflicted a dangerous wound. The physicians probed for the ball last evening, but were unable to find it.

A very observable feature in the procession on Thursday was a wagon drawn by four horses containing a nail cutting machine in operation, the display of the great American Iron Works of Jones & Laughlins. The nails were very beautiful specimens, and bore on either side the names of our candidates, Grant and Colfax. As a specimen of mechanical ingenuity they were very fine. The patriotic firm of Jones & Laughlins deserved much credit for their fine display in the procession.

A Fine Opportunity.—The evening sessions of the Iron City College, corner of Penn and St. Clair streets, now about to be resumed, will afford the young men of our cities an admirable opportunity to improve their leisure hours during the long evenings now at hand. Separate teachers being provided for the various departments of book-keeping, penmanship, mathematics, &c. Students have the privilege of devoting the whole or a part of their time to any one study. For terms apply at the College.

Thanks.—Hampton's Battery, an organization composed of as brave and true soldiers as ever manned a cannon, has been re-organized for the campaign, and under the command of Capt. Robert Paul fell into line in the Republican procession of Thursday. The members of the Battery return their grateful acknowledgments to Messrs. J. D. Dravo, of Pittsburgh, and James Lindsay, of the First ward, Allegheny, for their kindness and generous liberality in furnishing the necessary horses for those of their number who participated on the occasion.

Noonday Prayer Meeting.--A special invitation to ladies and gentlemen, young or old, to attend the noonday prayer meeting held to day at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association, No. 21 Fifth avenue. The exercises to-day will be in the interest of the Sabbath School cause, an announcement which should attract to the place a full attendance of the lovers of this important enterprise. The meetings are very interesting and those who attend never fail to come away both pleased and benefitted.

Attractive Entertainment.--The stereoscoptician entertainment last evening in the Ross street M. E. Church, for the benefit of the Sabbath School, will be repeated this evening. The entertainment consists of dissolving views of cities, landscapes, scenes in the late rebellion, statuary, &c., and is exceedingly interesting. There was quite a large attendance last evening and we went away highly pleased at the manner in which the evening had been spent. Those of our readers who wish to pass an hour or so pleasantly should visit this entertainment to-night.

Veterans of the War of 1812.--The following veterans of the war of 1812 participated in the Republican procession on Thursday: Col Deihl, aged 86 years; Jas. Neel, 86 years; John Irvin, 81 years; John Taylor, 79 years; D. Loomis, 75 years; Jas. Smith, 75 years; S. B. Cooper, 69 years, and Jacob McClelland, 68 years.

Missing.—Henry Philips and Jno. Brown, two lads residing on Wylie street, left their homes on Wednesday on a shooting excursion to East Liberty, taking with them a shot gun, and stating they would return at an early hour in the evening. They have not been heard of since leaving the Union Depot, about two o'clock the same day, and it is feared some accident has befallen them.

Injured by a Rocket.—While the torchlight procession was passing along Liberty street, Wednesday night, the stick of a rocket fired from one of the wagons in the line struck a little girl, daughter of Major Heyl, and inflicted a serious injury. The stick struck her in the inside corner of the right eye, and penetrated for a depth of over an inch and a half. Her physicians think she will recover.

Serious Accident.—On Wednesday evening, while the torchlight procession was passing along Lacock street, Allegheny, a stick from a rocket, proceeding from one of the wagons in the procession, struck a Miss Haines on the side of the face, and passing through the cheek knocked several of her teeth out. The wound, although a very severe one, is not considered dangerous, but it will leave an ugly scar on her face.

Insane.—Mrs. Anna Hartiger, residing in the Sixth ward, having for some time past been laboring under aberration of mind, the result of an attack of fever, has recently become so insane as to render it necessary that she should be sent to a hospital. Her husband yesterday made information before the Mayor against her for surety of the peace, in order to have her case brought before the Courts. She was arrested and committed.

Our accomplished fellow townsman, Mr. Henry Kleber, the sweet singer, the clever musician, and the author of several well known musical gems, has sent us a copy of his latest composition, a song for two voices, contralto and bass, "Sweet Hours of Memory" is appropriately dedicated to Mr. Richard E. Breed. The words of the song are sweet ones as is the music, which however has a tone of sadness running through it, which forms, indeed, its chief charm. We regret that we are so pressed with other matters at this time as to prohibit us from reviewing this little gem at length.

Inquest.--Alderman Donaldson, in the absence of Coroner Clawson, held an inquest on Wednesday on the body of William Pare, who with two comrades was drowned in the Monongahela river by the swamping of a skiff a few days since. The body was found floating in the river near Saw Mill Run and being secured was removed to Aiken's on Fourth avenue, where the inquest was held. A verdict of accidental drowning was rendered. The deceased resided with his parents at Mount Washington and was about thirteen years of age. The bodies of the three boys have now been recovered, that of Pare being the last one.

About a Hat.

Mr. J. Hershberg was standing on the steps of the Custom House watching the procession on Thursday morning when his hat was sent spinning into the gutter by an umbrella. He recovered it and charged a man named Mat Farrel, who was standing in the vicinity holding an umbrella, with knocking it off. Farrell became incensed at the accusation and pitched into the accuser, who fared very ill, according to his own story. The pugilistic gentleman was arrested and fined for disorderly conduct.

Sentences in the Criminal Court.

In the Criminal Court yesterday morning, Judge Sterrett on the bench, John W. Showalter and John Hixenbaugh were called up for sentence. The parties, it will be remembered, were convicted of the larceny of a coat and silver watch from William M'Kinney. McKinney had gone to sleep on the hillside above Birmingham, and had put his coat under his head for a pillow. When he awoke both watch and coat were gone. Showalter was sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary. Hixenbaugh was sentenced to undergo three months' imprisonment.

Run Over and Severely Injured.

While the Republican procession was passing along Federal street, Allegheny, Thursday, the horse upon which Mr. Theodore Straub was riding, became frightened and threw the rider violently to the ground. The gentleman fell directly in front of a wagon, the wheel of which passed over him before it could be stopped. The injured man was carried into a store in the vicinity and medical aid immediately summoned, when his injuries were found to be of a serious character. He was subsequently conveyed to his residence on Chestnut street, Third ward, Allegheny.

Thrown from a Horse.

On Wednesday evening, while the torchlight procession was passing down Penn street, Mr. William Vanhorn, who resides on Hope street, Allegheny, was riding on horseback, when a Roman candle was fired in close proximity to the animal, which caused it to become frightened and throw the gentleman with great violence to the ground. He was picked up by some policemen and taken into a house near at hand, when it was found that he had sustained a severe fracture of the collar bone, and received other painful injuries. Subsequently he was taken to his residence and his injuries attended to by Dr. N. W. White, who reduced the fracture and is still in attendance upon him.

City Mortality.

Dr. A. G. McCandless, Physician to the Board of Health, reports the following interments in the City of Pittsburgh from September 13th to September 20th, 1868:

Sudden Death—Coroner's Inquest.

Thomas McSteen, a resident of the Fifth Ward, was found dead in his bed about eleven o'clock yesterday. The deceased resided with his family, a wife and three children, in the third story of the house at the corner of High and Ross streets. He was in apparent good health yesterday morning and ate a hearty breakfast, and after taking a smoke went to his room. About half-past eleven o'clock his wife sent one of the children to call him to dinner. The child returned and said she could not wake him, whereupon the mother went herself to his room and found him dead in his bed.

The deceased was about forty-three years of age, and had been employed at Anderson & Wood's Steel Works, where he was at work the day preceding his death.

Coroner Clawson held an inquest on the body, and Dr. Daily being called to examine the case, stated that in his opinion death was produced by apoplexy. The jury returned a verdict to that effect.

The Old Canal Sewer—Another Cave In.

Several days since we published an account of the caving in of the sewer at the foot of Try street, where it passes over the bed of the outlet of the old Pennsylvania Canal, which was caused by the burning cinders of which the ground is formed over the sewer. Since our first account there has been no perceptible change in the appearance of the place until Wednesday, about two o'clock, when, owing probably to the heavy rains which have fallen during the week, soaking the ground thoroughly, another fall of earth occurred at the same point, increasing the size of the hole previously spoken of to nearly double its former size. The break is at the upper end of the old stone arch or bridge which was erected over the mouth of the outlet to the canal, and which is now fully twenty feet below the surface of the ground, and it extends up the sewer to where it passes under the stone wall which runs out from the pier or abutment of the railroad bridge. The first break in the sewer, we learn, was immediately under the wall, and was doubtless caused by the weight of the wall, aided to a great extent by the burning cinders, which forms the fill over the sewer. The ground over which the railroad track passes at that point where it crosses the sewer, or where the first break was discovered, has sunken about four feet, and in order to allow the trains to pass over it the track is kept up to the level by placing blocks under it. The wall, although having settled down at that point, appears to be solid, and trains continue to pass over it as usual. The Railroad Company has a force of twenty men at work cleaning out the sewer below, in order to let the water pass through without interruption, and we learn that as soon as this is effected, the wall extending from the bridge will be torn down, and the ground, which is composed of ashes and cinders from the mills to a depth of thirty or forty feet, will be removed and the wall re-built upon a solid foundation. This is the only practical way of remedying the difficulty, and we are only surprised at the folly of those who constructed the wall in the first place at erecting so heavy a structure on so frail a foundation.

The caving in has not interfered with the Connellsville Railroad, further than to break the connection with the extensive coal yard between the main track and Greenough street, and it is not likely to, as the old canal arch or bridge, which stands as firm as when it was originally erected, passes under all the tracks of that road.

The work of reconstruction is going to be a heavy and tedious as well as expensive one, and if we mistake not, the burning cinders in that locality are going to be the cause of a vast deal of trouble before the fire is extinguished. Nearly all the buildings below Second street, from that point for a considerable distance up the river, are built on ground made of that material, and the extent of the fire or when it will end cannot be ascertained.

An Outrage Upon Free Speech.

J. H. Fritz was in high spirits on Thursday, and manifested his feelings by hurrahing. Now, under ordinary circumstances there would have been nothing wrong in Mr. Fritz thus expressing himself, but unfortunately this was one of the circumstances which alter cases, as he subsequently discovered to his sorrow. It seems that he was standing on the corner of Seventh and Webster street, while the procession was passing, and as he gazed upon the enthusiastic and invincible host marching along, he, doubtless acting on the principle of whistling in the dark to keep the courage up, ventured upon a forcible demonstration for Seymour and Blair. The feint ecno had not died away before he felt and saw more of a hard set of knuckles than was agreeable, the effect of which was to leave him in a very blear condition. This was rather a settler for poor Fritz, but recovering himself, after mature deliberation he concluded that the constitution, that is his constitution, had been violated, coercion being incompatible with its provisions. Not willing to let this instance of Radical usurpation pass away unnoticed he quickly repaired to the office of Alderman Strain and lodged a complaint, which resulted in the arrest of one of the participants in the procession, who was held for a further hearing. Poor Fritz.

Death from Kicking.

On Thursday evening Alderman Donaldson, in the temporary absence of Coroner Clawson, held an inquest on the body of a young man named John King, who died at the residence of his father, Girty's Run, Shaler township. The circumstances of his death as developed by the testimony were as follows: The deceased, who was seventeen years of age, ate his supper on Wednesday evening, at his father's house, and shortly afterwards started to the stable. Not returning at bedtime, his parents concluded he was visiting some of the neighbors, and retired. In the morning he was still absent which alarmed them, and a search was at once instituted. One of them went to the barn, where the lifeless corpse of the young man was discovered lying on the floor in the rear of one of the horses. He had fallen across a beam, with his head, covered with blood, resting on the ground. Dr. McKelvy, of this city, was summoned who, after an examination, was of the opinion that death was instantaneous, from a kick in the stomach, and a verdict in accordance with these facts was rendered.

Alleged Robbery.

Joshua Lynch, from Beaver county, tells the following story: He visited the city and took part in the procession on Thursday. Subsequently he called on some some friends living in the old Fifth ward, where he spent the evening. When he left he was accompanied by two of them to a saloon on Canal street, near Penn, where the party had a treat. He paid for it and in doing so, thinks he displayed a roll of bills amounting to $75, but he does not remember that any person particularly observed him. Shortly afterwards he discovered that his wallet containing the money had been stolen, and meeting with the policeman on duty at the Grain Elevator related the circumstances to him. Efforts were made to recover the treasure, but so far they have been unsuccessful.

Allegheny County vs. The Pittsburgh & Connellsville Railroad Company—Heavy Verdict.

The case of the county of Allegheny vs. The Pittsburgh & Connellsville Railroad Company, which was taken up in the Court of Common Pleas, Judge Mellon presiding, on Monday last, was concluded yesterday morning, and resulted in a verdict in favor of the county. This was an action brought by the county to recover the interest due on bonds issued to the Railroad Company by the county. The aggregate claim was $311,331 06, but a deduction of $20,634 04 was made, the Court having expressed the opinion that that portion of the claim could not be rocovered at the present time. The jury then found a verdict for the county in the sum of $290,697 02. Messrs. M. Acheson and J. H. Sewell appeared for the county, and Hill Burgwin, Esq., for the Railroad Company. Mr. Burgwin, on the part of defendants, entered a motion for a new trial, and proposes to have the case carried up to the Supreme Court.

OPERA HOUSE.—Last evening, in spite of the inclemency of the weather, there assembled at the Opera House quite a large and fashionable audience, and one which seemed to show that the people have not yet had a surfeit of the ballet. The White Fawn was rendered with fine effect, a marked improvement being observable in the ballet as well as the reading portions of the play. This was to have been expected, however, as a play depending for its success entirely on scenic effect requires time and practice before everything will work smoothly and satisfactorily. The ballet performers appeared to be specially inspired last night, and interpreted the poetry of motion in a manner which drew forth the heartiest plaudits and encores of the audience. Morlachi sustained herself nobly—and with grace and ease executed marvellously well the most difficult posturing and motions possible in the art terpsichore. She blends all the fine arts in the one. She has adopted and inaugurates a new era in the ballet, travelling outside the walks of those who have gone before her, and interpreting and excuting according to her own ideas of grace and elegance. This afternoon a matinee will be held, and to-night, for the last time, the White Fawn with its gorgeous scenery and artistic mechanical effects will be produced.

Advice That Should Be Heeded.

We desire to call the attention of the afflicted to the merits of Roback's Blood Pills, a purely vegetable cathartic, free from mercury and all mineral poisons, and undoubtedly the best remedy extant for the radical cure of nervous and sick headache, bilious disorders and all affections of the Liver and Blood. They are, as their name indicates, a Blood Pill; they search the blood for disease and strike at the very root, thereby effecting not temporary but permanent cures. As a purgative, they are all that can be desired, being mild and safe in their operation and unquestionably one of our most satisfactory Cathartic Pills, and should be kept in every household, and, when taken in conjunction with Roback's Blood Purifier, are unequalled for curing Scrofula, Skin Disease, Old Sores, Salt Rheum, Dyspepsia, Erysipelas, Tumors, Eruptions, and all diseases arising from a disordered state of the blood or a disorganized state of the system. Try these medicines and you will never regret it. Ask those who have used them, and they will tell you they are the best of medicines. Sold by all druggists everywhere. TTST

That Wonderful Burdett.

The greatest success of the age, musically speaking, is the famous Burdett Organ. It has taken the public heart by storm as it were. Once heard, it can never be forgotten. The sweetest effects of the human voice, the pathetic tones of the violin, and the brilliant strains of a full band are produced upon the Burdett with wonderful truthfulness and by the simplest means. The person who will purchase an organ without having heard the "Burdett," will deprive himself of a delicious musical treat. The manufacturers are at this moment some three hundred organs behind their orders, as a letter to the sole Pittsburgh agents, Messrs. Kleber & Bro., shows. The difficulty is not so much to sell them, as to get a sufficient supply for the demand. If you want to hear the music, which is the very next thing to the human voice, call at Kleber's and get him to play a tune on the Burdett for you.

Wholesale Groceries.

We publish in another column the business card of the old and sterling wholesale grocery establishment of W. M. Gormly, No. 271 Liberty street, opposite Eagle Hotel. This house has been in existence since 1842, and has ever sustained an enviable reputation and high rank amongst our leading dealers, its trade being large and widely extended. Dealers who buy to sell again will always find it stocked with the choicest groceries, while the prices are unusually reasonable and inducing. From long acquaintance we can in no hesitating manner commend Mr. Gormly to the patronage of our readers, feeling assured that no where else can they find a better assortment or more advantageous quotations and inducements.

Secretary Stanton made his initial speech of the campaign yesterday, but we have not heard what allusion he made on the duties of all citizens, who would economize, to favor the Premium Trunk Factory of Joseph Liebler, No. 104 Wood street, with a purchasing visit. Nowhere else in this country can as good bargains in trunks, valises, satchels, hand-bags, &c., be obtained, and the ex-Secretary of War must certainly know it, as he is regarded as a well posted man.

The Carpet-baggers of the South are meeting with ill luck, as they generally had not the good sense to supply themselves with those of Joseph Liebler's make, No. 104 Wood street. A hint in time is sufficient.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25, 1868.

The Rollins alleged conspiracy case was again up before the U. S. Commissioner to-day, and two or three witnesses were examined, but nothing of importance was elicited.

The Labor Congress to-day was occupied in the discussion of the platform offered at last evening's session. After considerable discussion the clause deprecating strikes was stricken out. Exception was taken to the financial plank in the platform, and the monetary system was discussed until adjournment. The discussion was resumed at the afternoon session, but was finally adopted recognizing the rights of the workingmen and workingwomen of the nation to strike when all other just and equitable concessions are refused.
